Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

Warm and dry will be the rule throughout the next week, with a decent chance for low clouds and/or fog in the valleys each night. Warm and dry will then continue until Friday or Saturday. At that time, the models are showing a significant assault of the cool and wet in the form of a sharp upper level trough, and this should bring a return to rain, wind, and cooler weather for the weekend.

Eureka Weather:

High pressure will build tonight and maintain dry weather through Saturday evening. A cold front will bring a chance of rain across far Northwest California on Sunday. A strong upper level ridge will settle in across the West Coast next week with dry conditions and near to above average temperatures expected through most of the week.

Reno Weather:

A ridge of high pressure will slowly build over the Sierra and Western Nevada this weekend, becoming more pronounced early next week. It will remain dry through most or all of next week. Afternoon temperatures near or slightly above average today will rise to 5 to 10 degrees above average by Monday.

Sacramento Weather:

Dry weather expected through the week with above normal temperatures and some patchy morning valley fog.

San Francisco Weather:

Dry weather conditions will persist over the region this weekend and likely into much of next week as high pressure builds over the West Coast. Temperatures will also warm to above seasonal averages by early next week and continue through much of the work week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

High pressure over the region will provide dry and mild conditions through the end of the week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure will build in today and kick off a warming trend. Offshore flow early next week will push temperatures to or near record levels. Low pressure will approach the state later Friday for increasing clouds and cooler temperatures.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

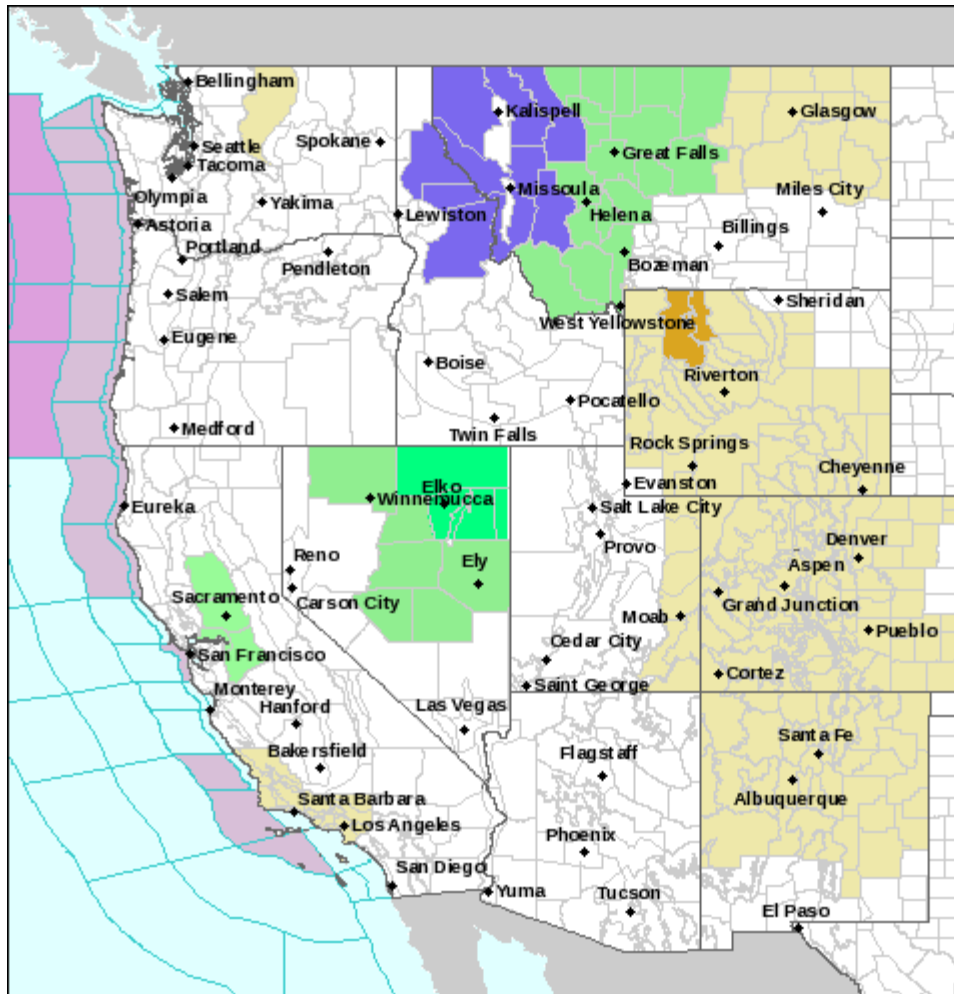

High pressure will bring an inland warming trend through the weekend. For Monday through Wednesday stronger high pressure aloft near the West Coast and surface high pressure over the great basin will bring well above average high temperatures with the strongest gusty Northeast winds near the coastal foothills on Monday. A cooling trend will follow for Thursday into next weekend as high pressure near the West Coast weakens.

Southeast California Weather:

Another unseasonably strong high pressure system is forecast to build over the region through Monday resulting in sunny skies with record or near record temperatures mainly Sunday and Monday.
